IMPACT PROGRAM

Education

Queenie shares her book that she wrote and illustrated about wild animals!

Uborat believes that every child in the Siha District of Tanzania, Africa deserves a quality education and that teachers need ample resources in order to teach effectively. Volunteers come alongside the Tanzanian teachers at Siha Leadership Pre and Primary School and provide training, books, and ideas so that the teachers can, in turn, communicate their subject matter clearly and creatively to the students they serve.

OUR INTENTION

The Education Impact Program seeks to lift children and families out of poverty through providing a quality pre-school through 7th grade education, laying the foundation for success in secondary school and beyond.

In a region where it is estimated that 30% of the adult population can neither read nor write, where books are virtually non-existent, the Uborat Education Team has brought books and inspiration for the joy of reading. In a curriculum based primarily on memorization, the Uborat team has mentored teaching for meaning and understanding. Test scores are rapidly improving, and both teachers and students have discovered a joy in learning that has been transformational.

OUR INSPIRATION

Nickson Mutta, an upper primary teacher, said after a science seminar, "I love when you share this knowledge with me because it makes me have big ideas for my classroom!"

Martha Mbise a primary teacher said, "I love teaching now, the children don't come empty anymore."

Jane Igwayna, a lower primary teacher said, "I have seen the results. I had tried everything I knew, but he could not read and hated coming to school. Now he can read, and he loves to come to school!"

Queenie, grade 5, inspired by reading time, decided to write and illustrate her own book about wild animals.

Moments like these provide inspiration that drive passion and purpose within the Education Impact Program
